

Julia Klot Releases “Boxing Gloves” on May 5th, 2023

Julia Klot is a NYC based pop music artist writing music with melodic and intricate piano parts, accompanied by her dynamic vocal range. Her writing evokes a vast range of emotions through soulful ballads and vulnerable lyricism, but also makes you dance and sing out loud with her funkier, upbeat tunes.

Julia’s song “Boxing Gloves”, produced by Matt Castello and co-produced by Julia Klot, sets the scene for a new funk pop sound influenced by bands like Lawrence, Melt, and Sammy Rae. The track is riddled with fun instrumental elements like a catchy horn arrangement and groovy Wurli keys.

“Boxing Gloves” is about a friendship gone sour– one that started out as loving and caring, but somehow turned cold and competitive. Julia sings that she won’t take the “push and shove” any more which leads her to the ultimate realization that when push comes to shove, letting go is the best answer.

“Boxing Gloves” is set for release on May 5th, 2023 and Julia will be hosting a Single Release Show that same night on Rockwood Music Hall’s main stage. Julia is also releasing a music video for the song on May 19th.

Julia says of her new release, “I’m really excited to share what I think is my most lyrically clever song to date, and to set the tone for a new sound and era of my music.”
